Humphrey Humphreys

He was bom on 24th November 1648, the eldest son of Richard Humphreys of Llanffothen and Margaret Wynn of Gesail Gyfarch. He had a younger brother and sister. He was given a good education at Oswestry, probably under his mother s uncle, and at Bangor (Friars), whence he went to Jesus College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1669, gaining his M.A. degree in 1672 at the age of twenty-four. He was elected Fellow in 1672-3, B.D. in 1679 and D.D. in 1682. He was ordained (by a faculty) deacon and priest on 12th November 1670 by Bishop Robert Morgan in Bangor Cathedral and was, on the same day, collated and instituted to the rectory of Llanfrothen [and thus of Beddgelert]. His other benefices were Trawsfynydd in 1672, Criccieth in 1677, and Llaniestyn in Lleyrn in 1680, and Hope (a sinecure) in 1689. He was installed Dean of Bangor on 16 December 1680. In 1681 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Morgan of Henbias, Anglesey, bishop of Bangor 1666-1673. His wife died in 1683 giving birth to their second daughter. In 1685 when he was thirty-seven years old, his uncle, Robert Wynn, died without issue and left Gesail Gyfarch, in Penmorfa, Caernarfonshire, and its estate to him.

Four years later he was consecrated Bishop of Bangor 30th June 1689, and, much against his desire, was translated to Hereford 2nd December 1701, where he died aged 63 on 20th November 1712 and was buried at that cathedral.

Bishop Humphreys s episcopate was one of marked activity, and even after his translation to Hereford, his interest in his native country did not lessen, although ill-health darkened his latter years. When dean of Bangor he improved the organisation of the diocese, rebuilt the deanery, and joined bishop Lloyd in an effort to win back the Dissenters to the Church. In 1690 he issued visitation queries in Welsh to find out the state of the diocese. He was a leading supporter of S.P.C.K. in north Wales and in a letter to the clergy he exhorts them to hold monthly meetings and to make themselves wholesome examples and patterns to the flock . He was an ardent Welshman antiquarian genealogist and man of letters.

From 1689 the Act of Toleration enabled non-conformists to build chapels, secure licenses for the preachers and buildings, and to cultivate their religious convictions.

His father was Richard Humphreys of Hendregwenllian, Penrhyndeudraeth, was baptised on 19th January 1620, and died on 19th February 1699. He was an officer in the Royal Army from the beginning of the Civil War. On 29 October 1647 he married his first wife Margaret, daughter of John Wynn of Gesail Gyfarch, who was bom on 5th December 1618 and died on 18 May 1679. Humphrey s brother John and sister Catherine died without issue.

(C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 96-97; J E Griffith, 1914, Pedigrees of Anglesey and Carnarvonshire families, p 235,236; Dictionary of Welsh Biography, 1959, p395; D Walker, ed., 1990, A History of the Church in Wales, p 109)

A painting of Bishop Humphreys by an unknown artist, from a contemporary copy, is displayed in Bangor Museum. (Copied in A H Dodd, 1968, A History of Caernarfonshire 1284-1900, plate XII)

Pewter plate gifted to the church of Llanfrothen by Richard Humphreys and dated 1697 and 1698 is currently at Beddgelert.

Who lived at Hendregwenllian from the death of Richard Humphrey in 1699 to whenever Robert Morris became the tenant? Maybe Bishop Humphreys unmarried brother John lived there after his father s death.
