HOUSE HISTORY

From CADW Listing Schedule:

Seat of the Anwyls, one of the notable families of Meirionydd in the Tudor & Stuart periods. A junior branch of the Clennau family, they were settled at Parc by at least the mid C16 and possibly earlier. Robert ap Morris (d. 1576) was responsible for the first of a series of unit-planned ranges, which by the late C17 comprised a large complex of 4 domestic blocks and a gatehouse, as well as associated stable and agricultural ranges.

It is possible that the gatehouse belongs to this early C17 phase, although it may have undergone some later C17 alteration, including the insertion of the attic dormers. The gatehouse would have been the porter's private accommodation and appears always to have been storeyed with one room to each floor, the upper one open to the roof; a blocked first-floor hill-slope entrance probably relates to a later (C18 or C19) loading bay.

Interior: Single-room floors, the upper open to the roof. 2-bay pegged oak collar truss roof with original purlins.

Y Parc (Park), Llanfrothen, Gwynedd (NPRN 404989)

Parc (Park) is the classic unit-system grouping described by Hemp and Gresham in Archaeologia Cambrensis 97 (1943), 97-112. Sampling was undertaken to establish the relative phasing of the group as a preliminary to future reinterpretation. As it stands (using Hemp and Gresham's numbering) the buildings in chronological sequence are: House 1 (sixteenth century, demolished); the Gatehouse (1617/18); House 3 (1654/5), set corner to corner with House 2 (mined and earlier); House 4 with the date inscription 1671 (last tree-ring date 1669/70).

The great barn and the cow-house remain to be sampled. (Vernacular Architecture, Vol 38, 2007, List 193: Welsh Dendrochronology Project - Phase 11, p 136)

Parc, Croesor, Llanfrothen, Gwynedd. NGR 26272 34396 Grade II*.

This group of stone-walled storeyed houses, gatehouse and barns was the seat of the Anwyl family, prominent during Tudor and Stuart periods. It is situated on elevated ground at 120m above O.D. above the steep valley not far from the former estuary shoreline.

The first house, now demolished, was thought to have been built by Robert ap Moris (d 1576). His grandson William Lewis Anwyl (died 1641) had greatly extended Parc before his death.

1618 Parc Gatws contains principal rafters felled in winter 1617/18.

Only stone traces of Parc 2 remain, appearing to be conjoined with 1655 Parc 3 (Parc Hendy). In this later building the upper lintel over stairs was felled after 1594 and the ground floor transverse beam in winter 1654/5. Katherine Anwyl may have had house 3 built / modernised, possibly completing a plan of her late husband Robert Anwyl who had died young in 1653.
