HOUSE HISTORY

RCAHMW Caerns II INVENTORY, Dolbenmaen, p 70, monument 891. Visited April 1953

A two-storeyed house of mortared rubble, 30ft long by 17ft 6" wide. The lintels of all openings are stone slabs; the roof is of modern slates with slab copings. At the NW end is a projecting chimney with large square stack with projecting coping; at the SE end is a modern chimney. There are windows on the ground floor only, except for one small window in the SE gable end. The house has two entrances opposite one another in the side walls. A mill-wheel has been built against the SE end of the NE wall, the wall being broken through to take the axle. The water conduit has gone but the buttress to support it remains against the SE side of the NE doorway; the conduit must have been carried over the top of the doorway and along the NE wall, which accounts for the blocking of the NE window.

The ground floor was divided by a post-and panel partition which was slotted not into the soffit of a ceiling beam but into a separate top beam which survives in its entirety; the SW half of the partition, with a doorway, survives, each 2 ft wide. All other internal divisions are modern.

The upper floor is supported on three chamfered beams, each 102 thick; the original joists also remain in the centre and SE bays (13 joists to each bay). The floor boards are modern, as is the stair; the position of the original stair is unknown.

The roof is supported on two cruck principal carrying the original flat purlins and common rafters. The crucks are 6" thick and 11" wide broadening to 1ft 2" at the bend; each contains a simple collar-beam pegged in at a high level. The NW cruck extends to within 2ft of the ground on the NE and 1ft 6" on the SW; the SE cruck extends to within 5ft of the ground on both sides. Regularly disposed peg-holes on the soffits of both crucks and collar-beams suggest that the upper floor originally had wattle and daub partitions.

The house is probably C16. The large enclosures surrounding it are probably contemporary (monument 994). The alterations connected with the mill-wheel and the insertion of the SE fireplace and chimney are probably C19.

Condition: Abandoned and beginning to fall into ruin.

RCAHMW: Additional notes by A J Parkinson, April 1990

CA Domestic SH 54/SE: Many photos & details. (Green folder) + second file.

Re-examination indicates clearly that the house is an open hall, although there is still uncertainty whether the main fireplace is original or not. Only the SE gable was originally floored; axial joists rest on a beam against the SE gable and are housed in the back of the head-beam of the partition. The joists of the middle bay are housed in separate beams (at a higher level) which are set into the walls and are not jointed to the crucks; these joists have a skimpy chamfer and run out stop. The NW bay now has no upper floor and there are no slots for joists on the NW face of the beam: the former floor (in a collapsed condition in 1960) was almost certainly 19th C, probably contemporary with the stair and other alterations.

The passage partition, although simple, is quite well made, with chamfered posts and mason's mitres on the head-beam. Three doorways might indicate twin inner rooms and a stair by the NE wall into the room above.

The problem of the gable chimney remains. It does not appear to have been inserted, and there is no indication of a louvre truss by the open cruck. However it is a projecting chimney (rather than the more usual chimney in the thickness of the gable, and there are no copings on its shoulders although the main gable has copings. There is also the point that a hall with a gable fireplace would reverse the normal internal planning, since there is nowhere for a dais. So on balance it seems likely that the chimney is secondary, probably 17th or 18th C and contemporary with the extension of the first floor over the central bay.

+ plans, elevations & many photos.

From Cadw Listing schedule: (c mid 1990s)

A fine sub-medieval house, probably originally timber framed throughout, probably built in the C16. The death of Robert ap William of Gorllwyn is recorded in 1624. (Ped p334) At some undefined later stage the outer walls were replaced in stone.

Exterior:

Built of rubble stonework enclosing a cruck-framed structure, with a slate roof, with rooflights, between raised coped gables probably replacing heather thatch. One storey and attic, with massive external stack and a narrower outbuilding at the opposite end. Boarded doors open into the central bay, with a corresponding back door. Deeply set small windows, with modern frames and glazing. In the C19 a water wheel was located at the rear of the upper bay to provide power for domestic purposes, the launder crossing the back of the house above doorhead level. An in-line outbuilding is attached to the upper end.

Interior:

The internal structure consists of two complete cruck trusses, halved and pegged at the apex, and with a tenoned and pegged collar beam and tie. Principal rafters on the back of the crucks. The tie beams which carried the wall plates are lower than the present walls, indicating that the external walls have been raised or rebuilt in stone. Some original rafters pegged to the purlin. The left bay is open to the roof, and has exposed purlins and rafters, one purlin with a scarf joint at the end perhaps suggesting a lost third bay. The central bay contains the entrance and stair and is divided from the upper bay by a post and panel partition. The upper rail bears evidence of three doorways originally opening into a subdivided upper bay. A rear door opens besides the stair. The upper bay contains the kitchen, and has a tie beam at the gable end offering some further evidence that the building was originally timber framed. Single tier of heavy square purlins, without windbraces. C19 stone flag floors. The gable end fireplace has a high chamfered lintel.

EARLY HISTORY

(1588 Lewes Dwnn II, p 88 Parish Beddcelert Llanvrothen)

Ririd Flaidd was a chieftan, styled lord of Penllyn, in Merionethshire. He died about the latter end of the reign of Henry II (1154). The armorial bearings attributed to him & borne by nearly all his descendants are Vert, a chevron between three wolves' heads, argent.

Jonet verch Howell married John Coetmor (Ped p 394 & 280)

William ap Robert ap Howel married Marged daughter of Gruffydd ap Meredudd ap Ifan ap Robert of Gwydir; her mother was Tanglwyst daughter of Meredudd ap Rhys ap Jockws of Vaenawr groes. Their children were Rhisiart, Wmffre, Owen, William, Sian who married Rhys ab Thomas ap Robert of Nanmor & Lowri who married 1st Morgan ap Sion ap Rhydderch of Trawsfynydd & 2nd Ifan Lloyd ap Humphrey of Havod Lwyddog.

Rhisiart ap William ap Robert ap Howel ap Rhys married, & had

Township of Penyfed; parish of Penmorfa

Howel ap Rhys ap Dafydd ap Cynddelw ap Iorwerth ap Ynyr ap Madog ap Rhirid Flaidd (Lord of Gest) seems to have been a prïodor in Llanfrothen. Gorllwyn was a large upland holding high on the slopes of Moel Ddu, and it may well have come to the family, settled on the opposite side of Traeth Mawr, by marriage with an heiress. (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 83-4)

Late 15th century: Howel ap Rhys owned Tyddyn Gorllwyn (J E Griffith, Pedigrees p 334) (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 126) His son Robert must have been born before 1500, when a younger brother, David Lloyd was born, probably at Gorllwyn.

David Lloyd ap Hywel ap Rhys, of Beddgelert, was 80 years old in 1580-1 when he appeared before the Special Commissioners re The Forest of Snowdon lands. His father Howel ap Rhys was of Gorllwyn. (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 47-8)

Howell's son, Robert ap Howel ap Rhys inherited Gorllwyn.

His principal lands may well have been in Llanfrothen. (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 126)

1521 Robert, of Llanfrothen, leased three important holdings in Penedfedydd – Cefn Coch, Yr Ynys ddreiniog & Maes y llech - from John ap Ieuan ap Rhys, Glyn, Talsarnau; but in 1535/1541 he assigned this lease to Elise of Clennau (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 83-4, 107; Clennau Deeds 42 & 64)

1531 Robert leased lands in Llanfrothen in deed (?source or is this confusion with the 1521 leases)

Dendrochronology results give felling dates as follows:

Ridge (ex situ)	Spring 1533
?Joist (ex situ)	(Spring 1533)
mean of 2 samples of E cruck, S truss	1523-35
W cruck, S truss	1530-42

These suggest that it was Robert ap Howel ap Rhys who erected Gorllwyn just a few years before the dissolution of the monasteries when he obtained additional farm leases.

It stands surrounded by mountain grazing, possibly enclosed when the house was erected; high above a former estuary, at over 200m above O.D.

The house is in a slight hollow, with the chimney gable-end is tucked into the hill slope, as is the back wall of the house. The front of the house faces SOUTH WEST? Nearby stream.

1980s: There was a step up to a higher floor level at the left cruck. There was a wooden partition across the house, the area towards the fireplace being open to the roof. This wall was at the bottom of the angled wooden stair case, possibly being the cause for the angle.

Dolbenmaen, Gorllwyn-uchaf (SH 5829 4298) Felling date: Spring 1533

*A stone-walled, cruck-framed hall-house incorporated into a two-unit house of Snowdonian plantype. Two cruck trusses survive, each with a morticed collar. Timber detail included a fragmentary post-and-panel partition with mortices in the head-beam (independent of the cruck) showing that the partition had three doorways. Only the outer room was originally floored over, and the hall was open to the roof until the eighteenth or nineteenth century. It is not clear if the projecting end chimney is an addition replacing the dais-end inner room. Precise felling dates are from ex situ offcuts from repairs of uncertain provenance. However, they are consistent with the felling date ranges produced by two of the crucks. The house stands surrounded by mountain grazing, over 200m above O.D. By a grant dated 15 March 1561/2 Thomas ap Rhys ap Hywel (of Bron y Foel in Treflys & Flintshire) conveyed to his second son John Wynn, "a messuage and lands called havod y llyn, Gardd lygad ty, Kay a myngys and havod gay in Nanmor". The principal witness being David Lloyd ap Robert ap Howel. (Gorllwyn). Cae Mynys is now part of Gardd llygad ddu, and Havod gau became part of Clogwyn. (C A Gresham, JMHS, 1978, Nanmor Deudraeth p 111 & NLW Dolfriog 10)

1578 Dec 6: 1. David Lloyd ap ROBERT ap Hoell ap Rees, free tenant of the township of Nannor, co M; 2. William Glyn the younger, & Richard ap Eliza ap Mores, gent., FEOFFMENT to uses of messuages tofts, lands & uses etc of COME KATH, HENDRE SAYSON, Y DDOLVRIOG & Y GYRTH, all township of Nannor, co M. (UWB, Mostyn 3817)

1580/1 David Lloyd ap Howel ap Rhys, of Beddgelert (& Gorllwyn), 80 years of age, was a witness in the Special Royal Commission re the Forest of Snowdon lands. He said that Bryn Deniel adjoined his father's land and had been held by him, and that it extended from his father's land, which was called Mur Hywel, to a rock called Y Graig Ddu, Graig Ddu or Yr Allt Ddu, as the other witnesses on this subject named it, was probably Moel Ddu, and the father was of Gorllwyn, so it is fairly certain that Bryn Deiniol was the holding now called Tai Cochion. (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 90)

In 1585 David Lloyd ap Hywel ap Rhys of Beddgelert was a trustee of an entail (release in trust) of the estate of John Wynn ap Humphrey of Gesail Gyfarch. (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 479)

John Wynn ap Thomas' (Gardd Llygad y dydd) daughter Margaret married Reignalt (Reynold) Rutter of Denbigh. (J E Griffith, Pedigrees p372, 264) By a pre-nuptial settlement of which the deed was dated 1590 John Wynn gave Margaret his land in "Bethkilert, Llanvair & Nanmor". (NLW Dolfrigiog 18). Those in Nanmor were Havod y Llyn & Gardd Llygad ddu. Soon after Rutter had taken control of these on behalf of his wife, he fell foul of one of his neighbours, Humphrey, son of David Lloyd (above). It is not certain what property Humphrey owned but it may have been land adjacent to Rutter's & there may have been a dispute over boundaries or rights of way. Neither would give way, so Rutter took the matter to the Council in the Marches of Wales and the court served a summons on Humphrey, who was so enraged that he assembled several neighbours and made three violent assaults on Rutter. This was in contempt of court & in 1593 Rutter brought a case to the Court of the Star Chamber at Westminster against Humphrey, Robert ap Richard ap William and John ap Morris ap Elise. (I ap Edwards, Catalogue of Star Chamber Proceedings, Cardiff, 1929, p86)

WAS Rhys ap Thomas ap Dafydd Lloyd of Nanmor a grandson of Dafydd Lloyd of Gorllwyn? Where did Rhys live? Rhys married Gwenhwyfer, daughter of Richard ap Rhys & Elin natural daughter of John Wynn ap Meredydd of Gwydir, and sister to Moris Jones of Craflwyn. (Ped 386) Is this a different Rhys ap Thomas of Nanmor to the one who married Sian? (See above)

From Robert ap Howel ap Rhys were descended the families of Brondanw and Ynysfor. (J E Griffith, Pedigrees p 334)

William ap Robert of Beddgelert & Llanfrothen

William ap Richard = Elizabeth

Robert ap William ap Richard, in 1631 lived at Tyddyn Gorllwyn and also held Llys y cripil, (Clist y Cripple) 1½ miles north of Gorllwyn, which formed a detached portion of the township of Penefed. (Eifionydd Rental; C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 126) His will is dated March 1 1676; he had married Mary Owen, buried 29 June 1689.

1676: the will of Robert ap William Prichard, Gorllwyn, Penmorfa, names his wife Mary Owen, and their children William Roberts, Owen Roberts, Lowry, Agnes, Elizabeth, girl. (T C Griffith Achau ac Ewyllysiau Teuluoedd De Sir Gaernarfon, 1989, p 120-1)

Robert ap William of Gorllwyn Uchaf had a sister Gwen who married Robert Rowlands (ap John ap Howel), of Brondanw, living 1626, but they had no children. Brondanw was inherited by Gwen's nephew, Robert ap William's son, William Roberts.

In 1642 William Roberts of Gorllwyn Ucha & Brondanw married Sydney, daughter of Arthur ap David of Madryn. He moved to Brondanw & was buried in 1693 in Llanfrothen. The value of his inventory was £168. (Bob Owen, Plas Brondanw, JMHRs, 1959 p 251)

He may have rebuilt Brondanw or erected a new building on the site of an older house, as there is a stone on the western end of the house with WW 1660 or 1666 carved on it. (Bob Owen, Plas Brondanw, JMHRs, 1959 p 251)

Robert Williams of Caernarfon & Brondanw married in 1714; administration of his will was granted in 1736. Married Mary, d of John Vaughan of Abercain, Llanystumdwy, died 1736 aged 42. They had seven children. (J E Griffith, Pedigrees, p 140)

Robert Williams was buried at Llanfrothen 30 Sept. 1742.

1742: He bequeathed his messuage of Tythyn y Gorllwyn Isaf to Griffith Williams, Llandegwning, clerk, his executor, whose daughter Dorothy had married Robert Williams' second brother, William Williams of Caernarfon & after of Pwllheli. This was when the two Gorllwyn holdings came under separate ownership.

[William Williams' second daughter Ellen (1726-1749) married Rev John Ellis & became an ancestor to Clough Williams-Ellis. (Bob Owen, Plas Brondanw, JMHRs, 1959 p 257)]

William Williams of Brondanw (1715-1778) married Elizabeth, d of Robert Lloyd of Dduallt died 1776. They had no children.

“He was the first who introduced Sea Banks into this part of Wales” (Inside Llanfrothen church) The estate was inherited to his brother, Rev John Williams, Rector of Harlington, near Windsor. He was married but died in 1789 without children and the estate was inherited by his sister Catherine Williams. She died unmarried in 1804 and willed the BRONDANW estate to Jane, daughter of her niece Mary, Jane Bulgin who married Rev Thomas Ellis of Tan yr Allt, Bangor.

Catherine William of Brondanw's sister Jane Jones had married Rev Thomas Jones, (1700-1771) M A, (Oxon) Rector of Trawsfynydd; they had eight children. (J E Griffith, Pedigree p 334).

Jane Jones inherited Ynysfor (? with Gorllwyn Uchaf and Llys y cripil) from William Williams, Brondanw.

*Their son was John Jones (1745-1829), B A , of Ynysfor. He inherited Gorllwyn & Llys y cripil.

His son, Evan Jones of Ynysfor (1793-1853) married Jane, daughter of Richard Pugh, Rector of Llanfrothen (1796-1836). They had four children.

In 1838 Gorllwyn Uchaf and Gorllwyn Isaf were each allotted two small ffriddoedd. (C A Gresham, 1973, Eifionydd, p 144)

Their son John Jones D L of Ynysfor (1829-1901) in 1866 married Lydia Ann, d & co heiress of John Jones of Oaklands, Denbighshire (1840-1922). They had ten children.

Their daughter Dorothes Blanche Jones married the Hon Ulick De Rope Burke Roche, 4th son of 1st Baron Fermoy (his second wife).

Their son Ulick Edmund Burke Roche was born in 1906. (J E Griffith, Pedigrees p334)
Col Roche married Primrose, and she still lives in Ynysfor in 2008.
