House History Summary

Researched by Miss D Pickard, Merioneth, March 2012

This typical Snowdonia house was probably built in 1531 but by whom is as yet unknown. The first reference is in a feoffment of 1611 when it was apparently tenanted by Evan Lewis Anwill but sold by John Owen of Ffestiniog to Evan Lloyd of London for £30 - this was probably Evan Lloyd of Dulassau, Penmachno. In 1632 it was sold to John Jones of Gray's Inn (probably of Meillionen and later Dolymoch) for £200 [evidence of rampant inflation!] The Dolymoch estate passed via an heiress Margaret to the Pugh family of Bennar, Penmachno and sometime after 1698 it passed via another heiress, Anne, to John Wynne, Bishop of St Asaph's and later Bishop of Bath and Wells. After over 100 years it devolved to a great nephew William John Bankes in 1815 and this family sold the estate in 1870. Mr William Pierce bought Brongoronwy and adjacent farms but kept them only 10 years before selling to the major landowner in the area Phillips Lloyd Fletcher; so it became part of the Pengwern Estate. This estate was gradually broken up after 1919 and in 1921 Brongoronwy was bought by Henry Thomas of Babell Cottage, Ffestiniog for £700. He died intestate in 1925 and his heir Robert Richard Jones sold in 1929 to Morris Jones of Cynfal, Barmouth.

Tenants: After Evan Lewis Anwyl the next known tenant was Richard Lloyd in 1798. Brongoronwy was farmed by three generations of Lloyds until 1892 when David Price - a kinsman of the Lloyds became the occupant. David died in 1920 when Evan Williams occupied it.

HOUSE HISTORY

This house was known as Bronrowgoch (1611), Bron'ronw (1798 1840 1869), Bron ronnw (1803 1855, 1870). Bron yr Onen (1809). Bryn yr Onnen (1820). Brongoronwy (1870 onwards).

All these names and those of other properties are spelt as in the quoted documents.

Dendrochronology summary

A total of ten timbers were sampled in this building. One timber showed several growth depressions and could not be dated. Of the remaining nine series, one- a collar- was found to have been from a tree felled in summer

A report commissioned by The North West Wales Dendrochronology Project in partnership with The Royal Commission on the Ancient and Historical Monuments in Wales (RCAHMW).

1477, whilst all the other roof timbers, and the top plate of a ground-floor screen appear to form a single group of timbers, most likely felled at the same time. Only one timber retained complete sapwood, and was found to have been from a tree felled in winter 1530/31.

It seems likely therefore that construction took place in 1531, or within a year or two after this date.

No document has been found relating to ownership before 1611
